Extended Degree Students

In planning your courses, you have to pay close attention to the relationship and articulation between your coursework and the Field Instruction; You should not accumulate more than 15 credit hours of courses without beginning your Field Instruction; exceptions require prior approval by the Associate Dean For Educational Programs. You and your advisor must examine your course planning and its relationship to the Field Instruction very closely once you have taken 15 credit hours. In particular, you should avoid taking advanced level practice method courses if you are not in Field Instruction. All Extended Degree students must submit an Out-of-Sequence Petition to the Office of Field Instruction prior to the term they plan to begin Field Instruction and must inform the School Registrar in writing prior to registration for the term in which they plan to begin full-time study.
