Course Description

This course addresses the theoretical framework of human loss and grief from a culturally and philosophically diverse perspective. It seeks to provide information about why and how humans grieve and how grieving is affected by type of loss, socioeconomic and cultural factors, individual personality and family functioning. Attention is focused on life span development and the meaning of death and loss at different ages. Various types of loss are discussed from an individual, family and socio/cultural perspective. The importance of understanding trauma and its relationship to grief and loss will be addressed. Coping and resiliency in loss are explored, emphasizing the diversity of human response and focusing on the significance of social groups in integrating loss. The formation and practice of rituals, and diversity in religious and spiritual experience as a component of coping with loss will be discussed.

Course Objectives

On completion of this course, the student will be able to:

1. Describe the implications for practice and policy of the changing patterns of death in the U.S. regarding age, sex, and minority group status.
2. Describe the different meanings of death over time, and sudden death (including suicide, homicide, and disaster), for its impact on survivors, caretakers and society.
3. Describe responses and reactions of the various caretakers (including social workers) to death and their influence on medical treatment decisions regarding the patient.
4. Describe the medical-ethical issues in death and dying.
5. Describe the bereavement and grieving process.
6. Describe the practical issues and problems that arise for families following death of a member.
7. Describe the impact of racial, ethnic, and gender issues for the family and/or person facing death or bereavement.
Relationship of the Course to Four Curricular Themes

- Multiculturalism and Diversity will be addressed through the discussion of worker-client differences and power/privilege differentials based on culture, ethnicity, race, gender, age, and social class. Social system and case examples, possible interventions, and readings will reflect this theme.
- Social Justice and Social Change will be addressed through discussion of differences between problems that are responsive to interpersonal practice interventions and those which result from poverty, discrimination, and disenfranchisement and require systemic as well as individual intervention.
- Promotion, Prevention, Treatment, and Rehabilitation will be addressed through identification of ways to provide early intervention, guidance, and advocacy within systems, methods of preventing or mitigating later problems in loss and bereavement, and discussion of intervention theories and health care and social policies which support adaptive responses to loss that enhance later adjustment.
- Behavioral and Social Science Research will inform this course, especially current research in the following areas: bereavement and complicated mourning attachment and developmental requirements, response to trauma and maltreatment and resiliency/coping/adaptation.

Relationship of the Course to Social Work Ethics and Values

Social work ethics and values will be addressed in this course using the NASW Code of Ethics. This course will increase awareness of the medical-ethical issues and decision making in death and dying. In addition, students will evaluate ethical issues involved in death and loss, and discuss the impact of the social worker’s values and reactions to these issues.

Class Norms

1. Attendance and participation are expected.
2. We will begin class promptly and resume class promptly after the designated break, based on mutually agreed upon times to be discussed in the first class session.
3. Approximately one-half to two-thirds of the class will be didactic presentation by the instructor or guest speakers. The remainder will consist of discussion and experiential activities in which participation is encouraged and expected.
4. Other norms which may be important to the class will be discussed and incorporated.

Assignments and Grading

1. Readings are considered a foundation of the course and you will be expected to know the content of the readings and to incorporate this knowledge into your assignments. It is expected that assigned readings will be completed prior to each class (including the readings listed for each date) to enhance discussion and interaction. Other course content will be disseminated through lecture, discussion, and experiential activities.

2. Written assignments (Instructions will be outlined in separate handouts).

   A. 1 page paper January 16 Pass-Fail
   B. 5-7 page paper February 20 15%
   C. Groups Project March 13 15%
   D. 10-12 page paper April 10 30%
   E. Reading Journal ongoing 25%

3. In class participation will account for 15% of your grade. Factors considered: attendance, completion of readings, sharing of pertinent information, participation in small group exercises. More details provided in “Assignments and Course Requirements”.

4. Out of fairness and respect for all class members, late receipt of the work will result in a 1/2 letter grade deduction. Exceptions will be made only in RARE and COMPELLING situations. A specific plan for completion of missing work must be agreed to by the instructor and the student.

5. Final Grades will be letter grades defined by the School of Social Work as follows:

   A grades Given for exceptional individual performance and mastery of the material. The use of A+, A, and A- should distinguish the degree of superiority. The grade of A should be given only on rare occasions.

   B grades Given to students who demonstrate mastery of the material. B+ indicates performance just above the mastery level but not in an exceptional manner. B- indicates just below the mastery level.

   C grades Mastery of the material is limited. C- is the lowest grade which carries credit.

   D grades Indicate deficiency and carry no credit.

   E grades Indicate failure and carry no credit.

   DR Unofficial drop.

   I Incomplete when illness or other compelling reason prevents completion of work and there is a definite plan and date for completion approved by the instructor.
